FORGIVE ME NOT.

Forget me not, my dearest friend, wherever you may be. One lone I ask, let come what may, Will you remember me. Forget me not in days to come, Though you may be far apart, When we no longer can confide The secrets of each heart.

Forget me not, for you have been The truest friend I ever knew— Of all my friends I love so well, There is none I trust as you. Forget me not, for I know My trust you'll not betray, As some deceitful ones have done, For you're not false as they.

Forget me not, though years may bring Success and joy and laud, When upon your glittering walls, Will shine your spouse's name, Forget me not, should fortune smile And jewels deck your brow; Would you forget me when I was sad, And I am glad to-night?

Forget me not, and may God's smiles Forever beam on you, And lead you safely home to Heaven, Where all are good and true. Forget me not, when I am sleeping, North the rose, and low and deep, And remember that I loved you. But I would not have you weep.

FRAGMENTS OF THE EARLY HISTORY OF OHIO COUNTY.

BY H. D. TAYLOR.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The intermediate grades between the thrifty, industrious farmer and the hunter was, first, the lazy, indolent mongrel, sometimes coaxed into fits of industry by an energetic wife, and then again driven into the forest by her scolding and like indolence and mismanagement; and, like most persons devoid of will and energy, succeeded in nothing. The officers, of course, and politicians of those days, may scarcely be named as forming a class, as they do at the present day. All the county officers, save members of the Legislature, being filled by the Governor or county court, and held during good behavior, we were not annoyed with annual hordes of candidates, who had been forced on the track by innumerable hosts of friends; and as for members of the Legislature in these early days, people thought they were really of some utility to the country, and consequently selected men whose character and qualifications were thought the best in the community. Sheriffs and justices of the peace were recommended by the county court, and commissioned by the Governor; and constables and jailers were appointed by the county courts alone, and the different courts appointed their own clerks.

It will be thought by this that we in by-gone days lived a hum-drum life; and it is no doubt that the children were untried, the women unfettered, and the men untroubled by hordes of candidates. There was also another trait of character peculiar to early times. Men not having the fear of being a candidate before their eyes, cultivated a free, off-hand mode of thought and speech, and communicated their thoughts of men and things in a plain, direct manner and language, without evasion or disguise. But now-a-days if we meet with one of those gentry who expects to be forced upon the track by the host of friends, and press him with questions, we may expect about as evasive answers as if we were before the shrine of Delphi.

Our early settlers were by no means selfish or misanthropic, but fond of social meetings and amusements, besides visiting between families—quiltings, log-rollings, chopping matches, cotton pickings and other such gatherings were great sources of amusement and pleasure. Muster days were also quite an affair; company musters were held monthly from April until September; and the climax of great military affairs came off in a regimental muster in October, at which all the militia of the county assembled.

It is true our tactics were not equal to those now taught at West Point, but men and officers did the best they could. In the company musters, especially some ludicrous incidents would occur, one particularly is recollected. One awkward young fellow, who had not studied the "discipline," was suddenly promoted to the office of Captain. Muster day came, and with the military strut he formed and dressed his men in line. He now commenced giving the command—"Right face!" setting the example of facing himself, by which he and his men got their backs to each other; then, with a loud braying voice, came the command—"Forward march!" and off he stepped, with the stride of a Wellington, and beheld his men march directly from, instead of following him! This was more than his temper could withstand, and he screamed forth in most unilitary phrase; "Where the plague are you going there! Turn about, and follow me!"

Those mustering days were also recognized as a tournament in which quarrels, insults and other wrongs were to be settled; not by the code duello, but by a game of fistfight, which game was governed by equally fair and inflexible rules, as the Code of Honor. If a difficulty occurred between two men, which could not be settled by mutual friends, it was adjourned over until the next muster day, where each of the parties met with their friends, and after muster the ground was selected, a ring formed, and a regular fist-fight settled it. This fight, where the parties were equally matched, would sometimes be long and bloody, but never dangerous to life and limb. No attempts at foul play or parting the combatants were allowed until one of them cried "enough!" Unfair or foul play was highly dishonorable, and the use of any weapons was branded as cowardly and disgraceful, and death and maiming from deadly weapons were scarcely ever known.

But the most thrilling, joyful occasions were weddings and funerals. Good mothers really looked upon their growing-up children as so many pledges of their future triumphs in their culinary and house-keeping arts, for few young ladies ever past their teens without marrying, and most young men, undeterred by the present expense of a fine lady's paraphernalia, sought a help-mate for him in some healthy, blooming young girl, and generally found one.

At these weddings, all the relations and most of the neighbors, were invited guests. Every family in reach tended their persons—nick-nacks, and even their personal services in contributing to the general feast. The table groined with meats, fowls, catfishes; the whole families of fies, cakes, &c. The marriage ceremony was performed at early candle-light, and the feasting then commenced and continued until perfect satiety ensued, and the table then cleared for plays or dancing; according to the religious sentiments of the old folks.

Though not as refined polished as at the present day, wit, sentiment and humor, of the clearest ring, produced repeated bursts of loud, uproarious laughter. These amusements were participated in by all till late bed time, when the old folks left for their homes, but the younger ones continued their amusements until the small hours, when they sought a few hours repose, where they could best find it; but the great excitement always came off the next day in running for the bottle. No matter how profound a secret the betrothed was considered, every youngster in the neighborhood, who had a ring with any pretensions to elocution, would learn enough of the secret to put his nag in training. The programme was as follows: The company met at the residence of the bride to accompany the happy pair to the infirmary; the cavalcade proceeded to within one or two miles of their destination, when they came to a halt, and all who wished to join in the race repaired to the front, and when they all answered themselves ready, the signal was given and away they dashed, helters-skelter; but the race was not always to the swift. When there were large bands or crooks in the road, perhaps the very hindmost would take advantage of his woodland, and by a night cut be the first to reach the door of the bride-groom. At this door the jolly old folks were always ready with the capacious bottle, to be handed to the first arrival, who received it with shouts and yells of triumph; and rode back with the utmost speed to meet the company, who received him with a general shout of applause. The bottle was handed to the bride-groom, who gallantly held it to the lips of the bride, and next imbued himself; then wiping the mouth of the bottle with his wiping the mouth of the bottle with the same cloth, passed it around the company, and then a brisk canter brought them to their place of destination, where the same process of feast and frolic was acted over again.

Not That Way.

Seated on the extreme end of a narrow bench in the Central Market yesterday was a boy who seemed to have made up his mind that life was a sham and happiness a myth. He was solemnly and intently gazing at a collection of cabbage-heads, six beets, a peck of onions and three cucumbers, when along came a young man and asked:

"What ails you?"

"Struck?" was the solemn answer.

"Have, eh? How'd you come out?"

"I was working for food for fifty cents a day," sadly explained the boy on the bench. "It was the only hand, and I thought if I struck for a dollar a day he would have to shut up shop and be lusted or come to terms."

"Not quite. The old man didn't seem a bit terror-stricken, but he bawled me through a window and hired another boy to do my work at three shillings a day!"

"What'll I do?" asked the other.

"Well, I s'pose I'll have to go around telling the boys that capital has ground me into dust," was the tearful reply.—Detroit Free Press.

Hold on, Boys.

Hold on to your tongues when you are just ready to swear, lie, speak harshly or use an improper word.

Hold on to your hand when you are about to strike, steal or do any improper act.

Hold on to your foot when you are on the point of kicking, running away from study or pursuing the path of error, shame or crime.

Hold on to your temper when you are angry, excited or imposed upon, and others are angry about you.

Hold on to your heart when evil persons seek your company and invite you to join their games, mirth or revelry.

Hold on to your name at all times, for it's more valuable to you than gold, high places or fashionable attire.

Hold on to truth, for it will serve you well, and do you good throughout all eternity.

Hold on to virtue—it is above all price to you in times and places.

Hold on to your good character, for it is, and always will be, your best wealth.

A Nebraska farmer hitched a pair of cows to a wagon when he journeyed, and milks them whenever he comes to a toll-gate, paying the toll in milk.

The Greenback Question.

(Evansville Courier.)

Senator Beck delivered a grand speech at Maysville, Kentucky, last Saturday, in which he placed himself squarely on the greenback platform, even to the payment of the government debt in greenbacks. We make no excuse for publishing the following extract, as it accords so entirely with the views entertained by the Western Democracy upon the money question. He said:

"Other men in and out of Congress denounce the demand of the Shylocks to have their interests paid in gold, but the money power was too strong to be resisted then and has so continued until now, and gold interest was allowed. No man supposed, nobody suggested that it ever could be claimed that the principle of these bonds (the 5-20s) could be demanded in gold or silver coin; but to make assurance doubly sure, Congress caused to be written on the back of each legal tender note that it was receivable at its face value for all debts, public and private, except interest on the bonds and custom dues. No man will deny that the principal of the bonds is a public debt; being so, it was of course payable in legal tender notes. It is simply nonsense for anybody now to contend otherwise. Yet the first act of General Grant's administration was the act declaring that the principal of all these bonds was payable in coin. The act was voted for by nearly every Radical in the House and Senate, and did not receive a single Democratic vote in either. That was the most infamous act ever passed by any Congress. It converted a domestic debt which could then be paid in a currency which would remain here, as five years had run from the issue of most of the bonds, into a foreign one; it added without consideration, and against law and justice, at least $500,000,000 to the debt of the country, a sum larger than the whole cost of maintaining all the Departments of the Government and paying all its debts entire for the first twenty-eight years of its existence, or from the first inauguration of Mr. Monroe, including all the expenditures of the war with Great Britain, from 1712 to 1815. It was rushed through with all the evidences of a carefully preconcerted conspiracy, before the Speaker had appointed any of the committees; under the gag, no man being allowed to open his mouth in the House of Representatives, and it passed Grant in less than a week after the time it was first introduced. It was simply an act of plunder, worse than highway robbery; there the victim has some chance to resist; in this case we had none. It ought to have hurled Grants administration and all connected with it from place and power. The acquiescence of the people in it emboldened them to pass the subsequent acts of a like nature, and have brought us to our present condition. In 1869 the bondholders of Europe and America knew they had a Congress that belonged to them. A body of men known as carpet-baggers had been placed in Congress by reduced eleven States to the most abject straits. They were called representatives of the Southern States and people, but were not so in any proper sense; they were the most malignant enemies and the most unscrupulous villifiers of the people for whom they professed to act—simply the agents of the Eastern monopolists and the hired tools of capitalists. By their presence in Congress New England and the Eastern monopolies had a double representation, and the South was forced to aid in her own degradation and in the destruction of the interest of the general tax-payers, especially in the great agricultural regions west of the Alleghenies and south of Mason and Dixon's line. Thank God they are almost extinct in American politics. May we never see the like again. I believe that the act of March 18, 1869, is unconstitutional, and therefore null and void. Congress, in 1869, had no power to declare the meaning of previous acts. All declaratory legislation is void. It is the prerogative of the courts to determine and declare the meaning of legislative acts, and it was clearly outside of the Constitutional power of Congress to take from the people of money, and give it, without pretense, to the bondholders. I have introduced several bills for its repeal, but have been always met with the cry that the faith of the nation was pledged by that act to the payment of the bonds in coin. I deny that any Congress can pledge any future Congress by an act, and I especially deny that the representatives of the people are under any sort of obligation to anybody to maintain such a measure as that passed, as it was, by a Congress filled with bogus representatives—an act conceived in sin and brought forth in iniquity."

It is to be hoped that the Democrats of Ohio will secure the aid of Senator Beck in the campaign about to open in that State. He is bold and fearless, aggressive, and is the peer of the best debaters in the land. The greenback cause was never so strong as it is to-day.

"I say, fellows," remarked a Yankee loafer to some of his companions, "let us see who can tell the biggest lie." "All right," said one. "I'm the biggest tool in America." "Oh, pshaw!" exclaimed the first, contemptuously; "we agreed to tell nothing but lies, and you begin by telling the truth."

It is supposed that the insurgent Cuban chief Gaspar Betancourt has been killed in action in the jurisdiction of Puerto Principe.

The Kissing Deacon.

In one of the most celebrated artists the world has ever known dwelt in the same city. One delighted in delineating beauty in all its graces of tint, form, and motion. His portraits were instinct with the charm of physical vigor. The graceful, half-voluptuous outline of form, and feature harmonized with delicately blended tints. On his canvases, the homeliest faces had an almost irresistible charm. The other found pleasure only in depicting weird and gloomy subjects. Above all, did he excel in painting the portraits of the dying. The agonizing death-throe, the ghastly face and form, were all depicted with marvelous fidelity. There existed between these artists the most intense dislike. At length this dislike culminated. The beauty-loving artist had been engaged in painting the portrait of a beautiful woman. Connoisseurs pronounced it the most wonderful piece of art that had ever been produced. His brother artist was jealous of his fame and sought revenge. By hiring the keeper of the studio he gained access to the picture each night. At first he was content to only darken the brilliancy of the complexion and eyes, efface the bloom from cheek and lip and paint a shadow on either cheek. Later, his strokes grew bolder and freer, and one morning the artist awoke to find the entire outline of the portrait changed. He could scarcely recognize in the emaciated form and haggard countenance the bright conception he had embodied. The pallid face and expressive eyes he had attributed to a lack of genuineness in his materials; but when the outlines were changed he suspected the cause and indignantly dismissed the keeper. What the revengeful artist marred by a few rapid strokes of his skillful brush was only restored by years of patient industry. Reader, need we name the artist?—Health, who paints the flowers and "grassy carpet" no less than the human form divine.—Disease, the dreaded artist who reveals among the ruins both of nature and humanity.—And Carelessness, the keeper to whom Health often intrusts his portraits. And is not the beauty of woman, the most admired of all the works which adorn the studio of Health, the slightest stroke of his brush upon the delicate organization leaves an imprint that requires much skill and patience to efface. Restoration must be prompt. Carelessness must be dismissed. Let suffering women heed the warning ere Disease has marred their chief beauty.—Health—beyond reparation. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been used by thousands of these sufferers, and they are unanimous in their praise of its excellence. If you would be transformed from the pallid, nervous invalid into a happy, vigorous woman, try it.

The editorial profession in this State is surely on rising ground. Most of those who are at the head of our Kentucky papers are men of education and ability, and there is not much more to be done in the way of weeding out. Next to religion the press is now the greatest power in the world. If there is anything that should make a tyrant tremble it is the press, for where the masses of men are not ignorant, oppression for any length of time is impossible. Every patriot and lover of liberty should do all he can to encourage a pure, strict, elevated order of journalism. Another thing that spoke well for the editors during their holiday at Frankfort, was sobriety. Every opportunity was afforded for their being otherwise, but to their honor be it said, not one did dignify himself by his high vociferation.

The Maytime Republic is again in the throes of a revolution. After the overthrow of President Michael Dominguez, in 1876, and the election of General Bosc and Canal to the Presidency, the Republic became very quiet, and it was thought that for the first time in the history of the country everybody was satisfied. Canal had hardly been in office six months before the usual jealousies were developed, which culminated in the present unpleasantness. Canal is charged by the blacks with two much intimacy with the foreign element, which is the most substantial and productive class of citizens in the Republic, and without which Hayti would go to the dogs. Canal is an intelligent gentleman and recognizes the propriety of keeping on good terms with the foreign merchants. General Solomons, who is threatening to grasp the Presidency, is a full-blooded negro who was driven out of the country by his own brethren a year or two ago. He now makes the magnificent threat that if he gets into power he will make the streets of Port-au-Prince run with the blood of both white and blacks. General Canal is a good soldier and may possibly be able to compass the difficulties of the situation. The trade of the United States with Hayti for years has been increasing during the last few years, New York alone selling nearly $4,000,000 worth of goods to the island. If the island is plunged again into a revolution, as seems likely, its prosperity will be seriously interrupted.

An English writer advises young ladies to look favorably upon those engaged in agricultural pursuits, giving as a reason that their mother, Eve, married a gardener. He forgot to add, however, that the gardener lost his situation soon afterwards.

A Michigan farmer abused his mother-in-law, and then asked her to lower him down the well to recover the lost dipper. The corner decided that the rope broke, though others thought it had been cut.

The English lion is at last aroused. The Russian bear is growing a little too near Constantinople for English comfort. There has been a little bad faith somewhere, and disinterested outsiders are of the opinion that both England and Russia have violated their contracts. At any rate there is sufficient difference between the two nations to justify a belief that England will be forced to take sides with Turkey. The Czar is pressing his troops in the direction of the sea of Marmora, and it is fair to presume that he will overrun Constantinople to get there. When England enters the fight it will give a different aspect to the European war.

It is probable that the Egyptian troops furnished by the Keddive for the Sultan's Danubian campaign will be required at home, as King John, of Abyssinia, threatens to invade Egypt in force. King John is a ferocious semi-barbarian, with whom it will not do to trifle or oppose with half measures. The result of the Egyptian campaign against him last year was sufficiently disastrous to suggest the idea that an Abyssinian invasion of Egypt means some blood work. King John is remorseless in his bad treatment of prisoners, and his army is well-trained and well-armed and equipped.

A Daily News special from Alexandria dated Aug. 8, says it is rumored that the Abyssinians are massing troops on the Egyptian frontier, and threaten a descent on Egyptian territory, unless the traitor, Waldo Mikal, is delivered up immediately. General Gordon is expected on the frontier shortly, to prevent further complications.

An entire family has been gibbeted up and placed in the Virginia penitentiary, a family by the name of Fortune, too; Albert, thirty years for six cases of horse-stealing; Ann and Polly, seven years each for the same offense; and Amanda, twelve for a similar offense. Two more members of the same family are razing at the expense of the State in the King William jail.

A boy-lady, having but one ear, was born to the wife of Mr. James Atchison, living not far from this place, a short time ago. The little fellow is said to be strong and healthy, though there is scarcely a sign of an ear on one side of the head.—[McLean County Progress.]

The crop outlook in this section is very dattering at the present writing. Tobacco and corn are both looking fine, and with good prices, the pocketbook of the farmer will in a few months, be plerotic with the wherewithal to make them happy. So mote it be.—[McLean County Progress.]

Women are going into the insurance business. And when a comely woman enters a man's office, latches up her chair, places a fair hand on his arm, and begins to talk politics, he feels as if his life ought to be insured pretty soon. And this feeling is greatly augmented should his wife drop in unexpectedly during the interview.

A Michigan farmer abused his mother-in-law, and then asked her to lower him down the well to recover the lost dipper. The corner decided that the rope broke, though others thought it had been cut.

Pretensions Men.

We never met a pretentious man who really amounted to anything. Pretentiousness is ever a sign of vulgarity or emptiness, as modesty is of refinement and culture. The would-be big man is some little mushroom village or city, escape being utterly ignored by his contemporaries, must make up by bluster and pretense what he lacks in genius, worth and nobility. As is the measure of the lack, so will be that of the bluster and nobody is deceived. All great men are modest. Our poets, our artists, thinkers, our writers, in proportion as they reach higher intellectual stature grow simpler in manner, less of self and more of their possible attainment in it. All great agencies are silent—sleep, death, light, thought, than which nothing is more potent. They who are living in vital sympathy with what is real and genuine, who drink from the sources of power, show more by deeds than by words of what stuff they are made. The man who strives to become great by words only, is a sham.—[Exchange.]

The Power of Niagara.

The amount of water passing over Niagara Falls has been estimated at 100,000,000 tons per hour, and its perpendicular descent may be taken at one hundred and fifty feet, without considering the rapids, which represent a further fall of one hundred and fifty feet. The force represented by the principal fall alone amounts to 16,892,000 horse-power, an amount which if it had to be produced by steam, would necessitate an expenditure of not less than $66,000,000 tons of coal per annum, taking the consumption of coal at four pounds per hour. In other words, all the coal raised throughout the world would barely suffice to produce the amount of power that annually runs to waste at this wonderful fall.

General Local News.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 15, 1877.

Do not fail to read the new advertisement of Klein & Bro.

Mr. Dick Hawes, of Daviess county, has red clover six feet high.

Watermelons, muskmelons, apples and peaches until you can't rest.

New Orleans molasses at E. T. Williams, for 65 and 75 cents per gallon.

The taxable property of Owensboro is: Whites, $2,023,000; blacks, 19,193.

Goods at and below cost until September 1st, at I. P. Barnard's Beaver Dam.

The outside appearance of the courthouse is greatly improved by fresh painting.

Mr. Will T. Cox has been quite sick for several days past, but is recovering now.

Mrs. A. L. Morton returned from a visit to relatives in Hardin county last week.

Owensboro can only boast of 97 days. We think Hartford can beat that "all hollow."

The fair at Hardinsburg commences Tuesday, September 26, and continues four days.

Miss Carrie Rowe, of this place, is spending several days among her kindred in the country.

Mr. "Bud" Sharp, living in Bartlett's precinct, had a fine horse stolen from him a few nights ago.

Best prints from now until September 1st at five cents per yard, at I. P. Barnard's, Beaver Dam.

There is quite a quantity of last year's corn in the country yet, and selling at twenty-five cents per bushel.

W. Prior Haden, formerly a resident here, has accepted a position in this popular grocery store of J. F. Collins.

Mr. J. F. Rice, the inland mail carrier from this place to Owensboro, is quite sick at his residence in the latter city.

A select crowd of young ladies and gentlemen from this place spent a very pleasant day at the Sulphur Springs Sunday.

Mr. I. P. Foreman, of Owensboro, spent a day or two with his friends here this week. Jack is one of the salesmen in the 99-cent store.

Be very cautious how you take $30 bills on the Third National Bank of Buffalo. A dangerous counterfeit on that issue is in circulation.

Hartford has more groceries, we venture to say, than any town in the State of equal population, and they all do good business.

Everybody who desires to see a successful fair here this fall, are requested without fail to come to the courthouse next Saturday at one o'clock.

The old fashion way of "making up a load and walking" seems to be fast going out of date, judging from the number of new buggies our citizens have recently purchased.

Mrs. Helen Carney, of Owensboro, who is visiting relations in the country, in company with Mrs. Mary Woodard, made a visit to the Herald office last Friday evening.

Two loads of salt in nice new barrels, fresh cooperage, for sale at $15 per barrel at Beaver Dam, by I. P. Barnard. Special inducements to parties purchasing lots of 5 to 10 barrels.

We accidentally omitted to mention, last week of the return of our fellow citizen, W. C. Morton, who had just reached home from an extended tour through Texas. He reports it a very fine country indeed.

Hartford can boast of the "Youngest" barber out, in the person of Eliza Young, who is serving an apprenticeship in the shaving saloon of Sam. Larkin. He shows beard pretty well for his experience.

We are informed through Mr. J. B. Dye that Mr. Henry Showers, a highly respectable citizen of Elizabethtown, shot himself through the left temple a few evenings ago, from which he died almost instantly.

In a practice game of base ball Saturday evening, two of the boys became "foul," and one of them made a "home strike" on the other. He didn't quite get away with him, but he cut off his wind for a while.

Hartford is fast becoming a huge menagerie and aviary. For some time past we have had in our midst a den of Lyons and a nest of Crows, and last week we added to the list a nice pet Baer. Come in and see our show.

One of the cleverest, largest-hearted men of our acquaintance is Mr. H. K. Wells, of Millwood, Grayson county, Kentucky. We return thanks to him for a box of nice, luscious peaches, sent us last week, and assure him that his remembrance of us in this instance is very greatly appreciated.

The spacious parlors in the residence of Hon. Sam. E. Hill, Senator elect, were on last Friday evening thrown open for the reception of the numerous friends who took an interest in his election, and who, on this occasion, met to congratulate him and enjoy themselves in one happy merry-making. All were welcomed in the warmest possible manner by the Senator and his accomplished and hospitable wife. This gathering of Democracy represented all the gallantry and beauty of Hartford and the county, and when the lively music floated through the halls, lighted wings feet kept time to the merry hearts in the dizzy dance. Everything went off as merry as a marriage bell, and when in the "see hours of the night," we took our leave of the Captain, we felt assured that one with so large a heart and comprehensive view of liberality and hospitality at home, would, on the floor of the Senate, be a tower of strength as the representative of a Democratic constituency in the interests of "justice to all men." This "happy gathering" will long be remembered by the young ladies and gentlemen of Hartford, and after the Captain has distinguished himself in the Senate, and an appreciative public has deemed his services necessary in the halls of Congress of his country, we will again meet to congratulate him on the success of merit and fidelity to the interests entrusted him by the people.

John Sam Newcomb is doubtless the champion owl killer of the county. He has slain and prooved thereby, older owls and younger ones than any other man living or dead. He has killed them in the day, in the night, on Monday and on Sunday, in the winter and in the summer, and his last exploit was in shooting one Sunday night—off-hand at seventy yards in the dark with a rifle. Sam has exquisite sight, and on this occasion aimed only at its voice and made a centre shot.

We learn from a proclamation issued by I. P. Barnard, "King of Merchants," that the strike has reached Beaver Dam, and in order to allay the angry passions of the multitude, and restore peace and harmony to the people, he will sell his stock of goods now until September 1st, at and below cost. Read his proclamation and procure thereby. Remember you only have fifteen more days in which to accept the terms of peace.

Money makes the paper go, as well as the mare, and we insist on your paying us what you owe, in order to keep the paper going. If you do not, it will have to stop as a natural consequence. If you want it to suspend, just fail to pay us what you owe us, or withhold your patronage and the object is accomplished. Do you want it to prosper and continue, then pay us what you owe, and give us your patronage liberally.

Mr. Baruch B. Felix, of the Sulphur Springs neighborhood, left home last Friday evening to hunt his horses and has not returned home yet. Fears were entertained that he had been foully dealt with, or had happened to some serious accident, but we learn that he was seen in Owensboro last Saturday evening and it may be that he has concluded to hunt new quarters or to take a tramp.

L. J. Lyon is the most business like man in Hartford. In addition to running a first-class hotel, he has a splendid stock of groceries at his old stand, which are being sold cheap for cash, or exchanged for country produce of all kinds. F. E. Kimbley is the gentlemanly salesman who will wait on the customers of the grocery, and he always gives satisfaction to those who patronize that establishment.

Bad Dickerson, an unbleached American citizen, was up last Friday before Judge Cooper of Beaver Dam, charged with the safe burglary at that place, a few days ago. The Commonwealth failed to make her case. He was again arrested under charge of carrying concealed, a deadly weapon, and was again acquitted. He was defended by Geo. G. Wedding.

We have but little idea what the article is, as we never saw anything exactly like it before. It is a little elastic contrivance, with nice brass buckles for fastenings, and resembles sleeve-holders very much. We found it last Saturday morning, and all the owner will have to do to get it will be to come up and wear it off. No charge will be made for this notice.

The Ohio County Sulphur Springs are beginning to be quite a place of summer resort. In addition to the large number of guests already there, Mr. James Parrish, of the Owensboro Examiner, and "Bud" Brotherton, of Owensboro, passed through town Sunday evening, bound for the Springs, where they expect to remain for several days.

Miss Nettie Miller, Miss Eliza Ford, Miss Anna Lewis, Mrs. J. W. Ford and Mrs. E. T. Williams were Hartford's representatives at the Baptist Association at Greenville last week. They report a very pleasant session, and speak in the highest praise of the manner in which they were entertained by the Greenville citizens.

D. A. Goodman has opened out the "Morning Star Saloon" at Henry Williams' old stand. He keeps a fine assortment of pure liquors of all kinds, Daviess county whiskey from one to nine years old. He solicits the patronage of his friends and former customers. Is prepared to furnish Oysters, Sardines, Bologna Sausage, herring, dried beef, &c. Come one, come all; if you want value received, give me a call.

The Ohio County Convention of the I. O. G. T. will meet at Hamilton School House, on Friday and Saturday, August 24th and 25th, 1877. The lodges of Ohio county will take notice and govern themselves accordingly. Strict lodges are also invited to send representatives. Convention meets at 10 o'clock, A. M. Public speaking 7 o'clock P. M. Friday and Saturday nights. Arrangements will be made to insure the comfort of all. By order of the Committee on Arrangements. Wm. Hamilton, Sec., L. D.

I have recently secured a first-class miller, and am now prepared better than ever to do good work on short notice. Patrons solicited and satisfaction guaranteed at the Hartford Water Mills. Bring on your grain. Wm. Stull.

Our citizens continue to show signs of enterprise, and building throughout the town continues.

Go to W. L. Rowe's and buy you a good Melon cheap.

Pacific Lawns at 10 cents a yard, at Beaver Dam, by I. P. Barnard.

WANTED—To exchange a good Sewing Machine for hay. J. S. VAUGHN.

A nice lot of wool jeans, bought before the advance, which I will sell very low. Beaver Dam. I. P. BARNARD.

A large black wolf was killed near Port Oliver, in Barren County a few days ago. This is the first wolf we have heard of in Kentucky, for a long time, except traveling with a menagerie.

Mr. Walker Byers and Mrs. Henderson Byers, of Grayson county honored us with a visit last Saturday. Mr. Byers is one of the prominent pedagogues of Grayson and will teach near Caneyville this fall.

Are you worried with headache, tooth ache, earache, neuralgia, rheumatism or any pains or aches, do not fail to go to Z. W. Griffin's Drug Store and get a bottle of Crook's "Never Fail," only 25 cts. and it "never fails" to cure.

This is no apology for whisky drinking; it is a medicine that cannot be used to intoxicate; it produces a tonic effect, as well as acts as a cathartic. In fact, Simmons' Liver Regulator is pronounced an unexceptionable medicine.

Mr. W. C. Morton, a groceryman of considerable experience, has bought out the grocery stock of W. C. Chapman, in the brick store-house under the Herald office, and will, next week, open out a splendid stock of new fresh groceries.

Having sold my stock of Groceries and rented my house to W. C. Morton, I am now selling my Shoes and Boots at cost and below cost. Now is the time to lay in your winter supply very low.

If you are unfortunate enough to get burned, scalded or cut yourself severely, do not delay, but get at once to Z. Wayne Griffin and procure a bottle of Crook's Electric Oil, which will give you speedy relief and an early cure. Only 25 cents a bottle.

Mr. Henry Small has completed the addition to his Trade Palace, and now has one of the most commodious store rooms in Hartford, and he is filling it to overflowing with a splendid assortment of goods, which he offers for sale at prices to defy competition.

Mr. L. J. Lyon, proprietor Lyon House, has secured the services of Mr. Louis C. Dillman at the desk in the office of that popular hotel. Mr. Dillman is a polite and accommodating gentleman, well qualified, and takes pleasure in making guests feel perfectly at home.

Elizabethtown News: The Hartford Herald, (one of the best county papers in the State,) is publishing a series of very entertaining articles from the pen of H. D. Taylor, entitled "Fragments of the Early History of Ohio County." We have read them with much interest.

We received a communication yesterday evening written at Buford, on the 9th, being only five days coming the wonderful distance of nine miles. Although it traveled with terrific speed, it did not reach here in time for this week's paper, and will have to go over to next week.

Next Sunday is Rev. W. W. Cook's regular and last appointment, for this place. Having an appointment at Pleasant Hill church, for the same day at 10 o'clock, A. M., therefore will not be able to fill his morning appointment for this place, but will fill his evening appointment.

Do not suffer any longer from old sores, tetters, ring worm, scald head, chaps, old skin diseases and cutaneous eruptions, but get at once and procure of Z. Wayne Griffin a bottle of Crook's Electric Oil and cure yourself. It will cure these ills in man or beast. Price 25 cents a bottle.

Mr. R. P. Brown and wife of Cool Springs, called to see us last Thursday. They are warm friends of the Herald, and say they expect to take it as long as they live and it is published. If only one half of the men of the county would do likewise, the Herald would be on a firm foundation.

Railroad Matters.

Mr. Dan. F. Whitcomb, the manager of the Owensboro and Nashville railroad, and Mr. J. H. Gardner, connected with the Cincinnati, Rockport and Southwestern road, are in the city. Mr. Whitcomb last week purchased a passenger coach and yesterday eleven cars for his road. There is a movement on foot which, if perfected, will make the Owensboro and Nashville road one of the most important in the State. It is contemplated to connect Owensboro with Vincennes, Ind., by way of the Cincinnati, Rockport and Southwestern road. This road is completed to Jasper, which is already connected with Rockport. The distance from Rockport is only ten miles, and it is proposed to fill the gap by a connecting link of the Owensboro and Nashville road, thus giving a direct line from Nashville to Vincennes, with connections to all points East. Mr. Whitcomb reports his road in fine condition and doing a good business. (Courier-Journal, August 10.)

Daviess County Fair. We have received the premium list of the Daviess County Fair Company. Their Fair will be held at their grounds, near Owensboro, commencing Wednesday, October 10th, 1877, and continuing three days. The premiums seem to be quite liberal. They have arranged for a continuous exhibition during the three days of the Fair of Horses within the Amphitheater—of Cattle, Sheep, Hogs and Mules in a Pound outside of the Amphitheatre on the grounds—and of Agricultural Products, Mechanical and Agricultural Implements in Floral Hall. For particulars, address, J. H. McHenry, Secretary.

"The Cash-Knife Cuts Deep." This is precisely the way in which Edwards & Foster look at things, and have concluded to do business in a more business-like manner. Since adopting this motto, it is really astonishing to see the great rush daily to their business house; and the immense quantity of goods they are selling is a clear proof that the cash-knife does cut deep. Edwards & Foster are both first-class business men, and any goods purchased of them will be guaranteed to be of the best and purest quality. With a small amount of money you can get lots of goods, and it is decidedly to your advantage to buy of them.

The Paducah and Elizabethtown R. R. This road was formerly, and up to the time that Gen. Minty was placed in charge, known as the Elizabethtown and Paducah R. R. Now it is the P. and E. (Prudence and Economy) R. R. No strike has yet been organized by the employees, and none is apprehended. The Southeastern has transported within the past few weeks for the P. and E. R. R. 500 tons of new steel rails.

Gen. Minty knows a good railroad when he sees one, and that's the kind of road he proposes to run. (Glasgow Times.)

Hymenial. Mr. Elias Small of this town, was married to Miss Luc Small, daughter of Mr. Henry Small, at the residence of the bride's father, 282 Fifth Street, Louisville Ky., on Wednesday, August 1st, 1877, at 8 o'clock, P. M. The Reverend Dr. Kleebach of the Jewish church, officiated, and in a very impressive manner, pronounced the train, husband and wife. A large number of friends and relatives were in attendance. The happy pair left for Put-in-Bay and other favorite resorts, and will return some time about the 1st of September.

Corn Extraordinary. We have at our office a stalk of corn grown by Alfred Morrison, of color, on the farm of Messrs. Walker & Hubbard, below town, known as the "Crow field." The stalk is nine feet high, or one hundred and eight inches. It is fifty-two days old, having been planted on the 23 day of June, last; its average growth being more than two inches per day. We challenge the State to beat this corn growing extraordinary.

Thrown from his Horse. On last Friday Mr. Harry P. Taylor, of this place, was thrown from his horse and so severely stunned as to render him insensible and speechless for a time. He was carried in from the street by some kind-hearted young ladies, and after a time was restored to consciousness, and is now apparently as well as ever.

A Bran New Store. Messrs. Baer Brothers & Co. have rented the store house formerly occupied by J. W. Lewis, and are opening out a nice and large stock of dry goods of every description. Their prices seem to be very reasonable, and they have the appearance of genteel, affable young men. Read their advertisement in this issue, and give them a trial.

Read This. All persons indebted to me will greatly oblige by calling and settling their accounts. I have to pay for my goods and cannot keep a fine line unless you pay me. W. H. MURKELL.

Beaver Dam, Aug. 13.

Pay Me What You Owe Me. All persons indebted to me are hereby notified that if they do not settle on or before the 1st of September, I will send for their notes and accounts in the hands of Sam. P. Taylor, deputy sheriff, for collection.

Land Warrants. Persons having land warrants to dispose of, would do well to call on JOHN P. BARRETT.

For Sale or Trade. Several second-hand SPRING-WAGONS and BUGGIES. J. F. YAGER.

Notice to Tax-Payers. The tax-payers of Ohio county are hereby notified that the taxes for the year 1877 are now due, and have been since the first day of June. I desire every one that owe taxes to pay up when called upon. Don't say it is too early to pay a debt when due, and especially taxes. So pay your taxes at once, and save the sheriff the trouble of dunning, and yourself the cost of levy if not paid soon. Hoping that you will respond promptly, I am, respectfully,

C. W. PHILLIPS, Sheriff Ohio County.
